Librex Newsletter - February 2016

Hi Marc-Andre,

Here's the February edition of our Librex Newsletter, which has the goal of keeping you informed about various Librex best practices and presenting you some of our new features.

Capture = Paper + Electronic

Since Librex 5, the scanning and manual importation windows are merged into a new document capture window. The capture operation refers to the importation of documents whatever their source and format are.

This merger offers you multiple benefits, including being able to easily add scanned pages to an existing electronic document and managing in a single step customer files that are in both paper and electronic formats.

This unified window also opens the door to building more complex capture workflows which will be explained in further details in a future newsletter.

Smarter Connectors

Our smart connectors have seen their IQ raise in the most recent Librex releases.

Those connectors enable the transfer and automatic classification of your documents in multiple systems, giving your team a major productivity gain.

Here are some of those new features:

- The transfer of a property value can now be conditionnal.

- A fixed valued can now be assigned directly in the connector.

- For duplicates, it's possible to define the characters that separate the title from the increment (ex: Title-2.pdf).

- Automatic validation of your configuration.

- Better error management.

Would you like to try one of those connectors? If so, simply follow our connector configuration tutorial (illustrated using our SharePoint connector).
