Librex Newsletter - January 2016

Hi Marc-Andre,

Here's the January edition of our Librex Newsletter, which has the goal of keeping you informed about various Librex best practices and presenting you some of our new features.

Tax Number and Amount Extraction

To simplify the extraction of structured data from your documents, we created some new conversion functions.

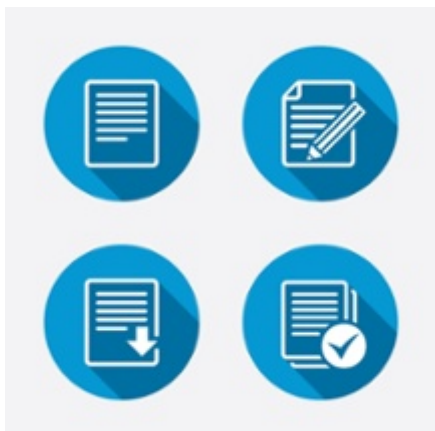

Two of those functions are:

- Tax number extraction: Select the format to extract from a list of countries, provinces and territories.
- Amount extraction: Choose a predefined format for a specific country or define your own format. You may also choose to keep the highest amount in a zone/page.

This type of conversion function is very useful to help you automate business processes like your accounts payable or insurance claims analysis.

Please contact us if you'd like to optimize this kind of process.

Version Management in Librex 5

Before Librex 5, all documents' instances with the same name were considered as versions of the same document. This behaviour had its limitations in some situations.

Since Librex 5, each new document is considered as a distinct document. Modifying an existing document is now the only way to create a new version. This version can be minor (e.g. 1.3) if only the properties' values were modified, or major (e.g. 2.0) if the content was altered (adding or deleting a page, rotating a page...).

This new strategy of version management opens the door to configure more complex and better structured capture workflows.

To get more details about this new feature and to see how this affects you when migrating from Librex 4 to Librex 5, please visit page www.coriumsoft.com/Librex5Versions.
